THE HONORABLE FATHERS.

A Father and His Sons Shoot and Kill Two Officers.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 4.—Last particulars of the Dubois county tragedy give a more detailed account of the assassination of Officers Gardner and Cox by the Reevess, father and sons.

Robert H. Reeves is a farmer living in Coopersburg, Dubois county. He is about 60 years old and somewhat of a hard character, having already served a term in prison. He has two sons—John, aged 35, and George, aged 30. They are salaried keepers in Terre Haute, and are rated as desperadoes. For the past year they have been engaged in robbing mail cars, and they do recognize that there is a point beyond which they cannot go, and that point is the national safety. [Applause.] That is the reason why they have the belief that the war will teach us to trust all education in the country will teach us to observe.

After some words of compliment to the university, Mr. Bayard closed and was most heartily applauded.

MURDERED BY DESPERADOES.

IN A TERRIBLE STORM IN KANSAS.

PROPERTY IN ATCHISON DAMAGED TO THE EXTENT OF FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 4.—A terrific storm of wind and rain swept over this city yesterday, destroying public and private property to the extent of fifty thousand dollars. All the creeks overflowed their banks and the culverts, bridges and crossings were swept away.

The wind, which had been blowing with great violence, subsided at noon, but the rain continued.

The water was so high that the streets were flooded, and the houses were inundated.

The damage was estimated at $50,000.

WAS SCOTT IN MACON?

RUMORS OF A VISIT OF THE NEW YORK DEFAULTER.

The Wadley Monument.—The Chamber of Commerce—The Sun Ordinance—Complaints—Military Academy—Commencement at Mercer University—The Marks House.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Certain people in this city believe that Richard S. Scott, who made the big story from the Manhattan bank, of New York, was here to-day.

About six o'clock, just as the guests of the National hotel were sitting down to dinner, a man who appeared to be forty-five years old, weight about one hundred and sixty pounds, gray hair, slightly bald, short, heavy mustache, pop eyes, rather red faced, entered the office, bearing two new valves. He wore a brown derby hat, and a dark gray suit. His cravat was confined by a ring, and in his collar was a diamond button. On the third finger of his right hand he wore a cameo ring.

The stranger said that he was from Gainesville, and that he had eaten dinner. The name under which he called could not be learned. He appeared to be uneasy, and carefully avoided scrutiny. Immediately after dinner he was led away to appear before the recorder for violating the liquor laws. The white stretch would not admit that law to cover the case, and Scott was dismissed.

The Wadley Monument.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Work on the Wadley monument is progressing steadily, and will be completed in a few days. The preparations for the unveiling ceremonies have been completed. It is probable that the Chatham Artillery will come up from Savannah to participate in the ceremony when it is ready. The monument has not yet been fixed, but Agent A. C. Knapp says this morning that the 15th instant will probably be chosen.

The Macon parties will have the pleasure of knowing that they let a private reward slip through their hands.

Two Brothers Fight.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—Two white men, brothers, C. M. Caldwell and J. J. Caldwell, engaged in a rather serious fight to-day about noon. They have been engaged in painting a house on Academy street for the last few days. A Mr. McDaniel, in charge of the work, had visited Macon, such a school in Macon won a large patronage and yielded a fine revenue.

In Honor of the Augustas.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—The special committee, composed of Mayor Price and Alderman Proudfit, Cox, Davis, and Hudgings to whom was referred the proposed contract with J. Daunenberg, respecting the erection of a monument, has decided to submit the matter to a vote of the people for ratification or rejection. As far as can be learned, the citizens of Macon are in favor of the contract.

The suspicious looking stranger would have been arrested yesterday, had it not been that the parties who thought him to be Scott were not certain enough of his identity to run the risk of having themselves maimed in a suit for damages for false imprisonment.

If the man was Scott, the Macon parties will have the pleasure of knowing that they let a private reward slip through their hands.

Personal and Otherwise.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—The Alexander school will close on the 26th inst.

Charlie Lane was considered better to-day, although he is still quite sick.

Balfit Kimble has plenty of ripe peaches in his orchard in the southern part of the city.

Manager W. C. Bryan of the Macous, makes the following statement: "I am a citizen of the U. S. I. B. and have been a member of the Atlanta chapter since its organization."

J. A. Eates, of the music firm of Ludden & Eates, Savannah, arrived in the city to-night.

Henry Jackson, of Augusta, spent to-day in Macon.

T. A. Johnson, of Dawson, registered at the National hotel, when he came to town.

M. F. Few, wife and daughter of Frazier, Ga., were at the Edgerton to-day.

Charles Davis, wife and child, of Sandersville, were at the Edgerton to-day.

R. R. Dorsey, general passenger agent of the Georgia railroad, spent to-day in Macon.

L. C. Dennis, agent of the Central railroad at Eatonton, was at the Edgerton to-day.

C. A. Allen and Robert Adams, of Eatonton, are spending a day or two in Macon.

Thomas Hawkins, of St. Mary's, is at Brown's hotel.

F. B. Patterson, of Columbus, is in the city.

Station Master Keeler, of Henry, was thirty years old to-day. He has been in the city several days, trying to dispose of his business in the superior court.

The cases tried to-day were as follows:

C. O'Connell, guardian, vs. W. C. Shetler, verdict for plaintiff. Martha Hendricks vs. A. B. Ross, administrator, verdict for plaintiff.

The case of Johnson vs. Giles was settled.

After disposing of these cases the court adjourned until Monday, when the criminal docket will be called.

The cases set for Monday are: State vs. Rhodes, Dooly, no cause; State vs. Eason, Dooly, no cause; state vs. Phillips and Stubbs, burglar, state vs. Bob Harman, cattle stealing; state vs. Bob Scott, hog stealing; state vs. Harryett Collins, receiving stolen goods; state vs. William Harper, larceny after the fact; state vs. Jim King, assault with intent to murder.

It is thought that difficulty will be experienced in securing a jury for the Dooly trial. One hundred and ninety tales jurors have been summoned for the case.

Commencement at Mercer University.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Commencement at Mercer university this year will be full of interest. A much larger number of students than for several years past have been matriculated, and many of them are young men of first-rate ability. The course placed in the commencement programme are the same as the university, and their efforts are sure to prove interesting.

Rev. Louis Burrows, of Augusta, will speak at the exercises.

A. O. Marshall will preach the sermon before the missionary society on the night of the same day.

Rev. Dr. T. C. Lewis, of Savannah, will deliver the annual address to the alumni, and Rev. Dr. W. H. Nunnelly, of Enauha, will deliver the address before the literary societies.

The Alumni, Tau Omega fraternity, and the Phi Delta Theta, will have grand banquets during commencement week.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Nunnelly, of the preparatory department of the university, will close his exercises on the 18th instant. Mr. A. I. Branham, trustee of this school, will resign at the end of the term, having determined to enter another business.

The Chamber of Commerce.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—The meeting of the merchants yesterday, to reorganize the chamber of commerce, was a success. A large number of merchants were present, and they were unanimous in the opinion that a well-organized, well-arranged chamber of commerce would be of great advantage to Macao business interests.

The Alpine, Tau Omega fraternity, and the Phi Delta Theta, will have grand banquets during commencement week.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Nunnelly, of the preparatory department of the university, will close his exercises on the 18th instant. Mr. A. I. Branham, trustee of this school, will resign at the end of the term, having determined to enter another business.

Hook and Line.

QUITMAN, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Your correspondent had a delightful experience on a fishing trip to-day.

Colonel A. B. Tinsley, of Tinsley, took several photographs of the pedestal of the Wadley monument this afternoon. Quite a crowd witnessed the ceremony.

Librarian Herbst has at the public library a handsome photograph of the actor's monument to Edgar Allan Poe, recently erected in New York.

There has been no material change in Mr. Ed McLean's condition since yesterday.

An Old Man Murdered.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—The board of visitors to the state university is now in session in Athens.

The board has been permanently organized by the election of Colonel I. W. Avery, of Atlanta, Ga., as chairman, and Edward Hunter, of Louisville, Ga., as secretary. The members present were Rev. W. J. Scott, Colonel Jink Jones, of Burke county; Mr. S. B. Davis, of Newnan, and Mr. Charles S. Neal, of Kirkwood.

The board has gone actively to work and examined a large number of papers on geology, political economy, and moral science.

We are pleased that the trustees have made no improvement in the minor matter that the visitors found fault with last year. There is an average uniformity of excellent scholarship, showing talent and study in the pupils and faithful teaching in the faculty.

The friends of the institution will be pleased to learn of this, and to know how much gratified the board expresses itself at the standard of scholarship. The board authorized the chairman to call a meeting of the trustees on the 1st of June, and appointed A. V. Avery, of Atlanta, as committee.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Nunnelly, of the Alpine, Tau Omega fraternity, and the Phi Delta Theta, will have grand banquets during commencement week.

Exploration of a Roman Boiler.

ROME, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—The alarm of fire was sounded this morning, and the boiler room of the Rome furniture factory was found to be in flames. Owing to promptitude of the fire department serious losses were avoided. The damage does not exceed one hundred dollars.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. C. Scott; Vice-president, Frank D. Tinsley; J. R. West, and W. A. Boddy, was appointed to the board of directors.

A committee consisting of Messrs. R. M. Rogers, T. C. Lewis, Dr. Tinsley, J. R. West, and W. A. Boddy, was appointed to the board of directors to see how many members at one hundred dollars, fifty dollars, and twenty-five dollars per annum, could be induced to become members, so as to secure a sufficient number of members to raise five thousand dollars per annum shall be obtained.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. C. Scott; Vice-president, Frank D. Tinsley; J. R. West, and W. A. Boddy, was appointed to the board of directors.

The indications to-day point to a speedy and successful result to the labor of the canvassing committee.

Returned to Her Mother.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Clara Johnson, who came from Eatonton last Monday to look for an erring daughter named Winnie, found the girl yesterday, and will take her home to-morrow.

The girl, who is a bright mulatto, had been enticed into a negro den on Plum street, where she remained but a few days. She refused to obey the keeper of the place, who was kicked into the street. When brought by her mother to the home of the homeless and hungry, and was perfectly willing to return to her home.

There are now two houses on Plum and Fifth streets in this city are nuisances, and ought to be wiped off the face of the earth.

The Sign Ordinance Again.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—At the last meeting of the city council a resolution was adopted defining the sign ordinance recently passed. The resolution makes it imperative that all signs shall be placed immediately over the entrance to places of business. Some of the merchants do not like this, claiming that signs placed from the outside of the building do not meet the requirements of the ordinance. Everybody, however, obeys the law, and the result is greatly improved.

The next thing in order ought to be an ordinance requiring that telegraph and telephone poles to be painted. As they stand, they are an eyesore.

Fourth Street Merchants Disagree.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—Two well known Fourth street merchants, J. B. Williams and F. W. Wippler, had a fight late this afternoon. Williams went to see Wippler about a dispute claimed to be due to the former. A dispute arose about the master, and blows were exchanged. Williams knocked Wippler down two or three times. One Brown and Moore demanded that he appear at trial at the recorder's court to-morrow morning.

A Novel Case.

MACON, Ga., June 4.—[Special.]—J. W. Pearson for quite a while kept a store and ice box on Cotton street. A few weeks ago he moved across the street, and the store he vacated was occupied by a negro named Castillo. Pearson claimed that the negro interfered with him about his business, and when he went to see him about it, he was told that he was to leave his store, and had the latter summoned to appear before the recorder for violating the liquor laws. The white stretch would not admit that law to cover the case, and Castillo was dismissed.

THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, JUNE 5, 1885.

INDICATIONS for middle Atlantic States, at 1 a.m.: Fair weather in southern portion; local rains in northern portion; lower barometer; winds generally southerly; slight change in temperature.

GENERAL ROSECRANZ has had a varied experience in politics, his ambition spreading out all the way from Ohio to California. The president has just appointed his register of the treasury, to succeed the colored Bruce.

SECRETARY BAYARD addressed the students of the university of Missouri yesterday, upon the life and services of Thomas Jefferson. He drew attention to the fact that while the men of 1860 differed in politics, they never forgot the duty which they owed to their country, above the claims of party.

The verdict of guilty, rendered in the Claverus case, is a surprise, and yet is what should have been expected. That justice should defeat the wiles of more criminal lawyers, whose only purpose is to defeat the law, is gratifying, while the verdict shows that the men of Virginia cannot be easily swerved from the path of duty.

A CITIZEN of France, living in New Orleans, has rendered himself useful to the city of his residence. The members of the general council, anxious for a juncture to Philadelphia, appropriated five thousand dollars for the return of liberty bell to the Quaker city. This was intended to cover the whisky punch and cigar bills of the party. An application for an injunction was made before Judge Pardee, which he granted.

EX-GOVERNOR BULLOCK, in his letter carefully avoids the facts at issue, and proceeds to discuss the morality involved. Such a discussion might be made interminable. It will be time enough to enter into this branch of the subject when the facts are disposed of and when we find an opponent calculated to give point to what we might feel disposed to say on that subject. The facts in the case will be presented in a day or two by a gentleman familiar with every detail of the matter.

THE PENSION LIST.

It is announced that the pension officer has reached a point where the number of applications for pensions is less than the number of certificates for pensions issued. Up to the time when this change had occurred, the bureau had not been able to keep up with the applications. This, however, is by no means the end of applications, and this generation will not see an end to the payment of pensions.

In a table of estimates, which includes both federal and confederate soldiers, we find some interesting calculations. Assuming that there were 2,942,000 soldiers in 1865, it is estimated that two-thirds of them will have passed away in 1895, one-half in 1904, and that in 1933 only 1,233 will be left, the oldest of whom will be ninety-six. In other words, the first million would die in thirty years, the second in fifteen years, and the third twenty years.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

It is not necessary to give up bi-metallism in order to get the silver dollars into circulation. If the silver dollar is too large and heavy for general use, let it stay in the treasury vaults and be represented among the people by one and two dollar certificates. Every such certificate would be based on silver dollars in the treasury, and unless the eastern folks discredit the certificates, they would of course speedily become a part of the circulation of the people. They probably would, in spite of all efforts and intrigues to the contrary.

Still another plan is possible. There are now in circulation greenbacks of a less denomination than $5, to the amount of $5,000,000. If the one and two dollar greenbacks were retired as fast as they are presented, the silver dollars would go out, or if they are too heavy for everyday use, certificates based upon them would be actively circulated.

The retirement of the lesser greenbacks should not be postponed, and when that is accomplished it will not be difficult to ascertain whether the people want the silver dollars or certificates based upon them. There need be very little difficulty in getting the silver dollars into circulation if congressmen will consult the people and act up to their views on the subject. Just now the enemies of the double standard are doing all the talking, but the chances are there will be, after awhile, an inning for the other side.

MR. BAYARD'S FOREIGN POLICY.

In our opinion, Secretary Bayard gave effect to a very important democratic principle which has long been ignored by the republican party, when he struck from the consular regulations the paragraph which had been inserted by the foreign clerks who have heretofore had charge of the department of state. The objectionable paragraph sets forth that "a declaration of an intention to become a citizen of the United States does not constitute a person a citizen within the meaning of the law." By striking out this paragraph Secretary Bayard not only reinstates a sound democratic principle, but gives notice that he proposes to institute a vigorous foreign policy.

Heretofore it has been possible for foreign governments to throw American citizens in jail with impunity, and this has been frequently done under republican administrations, with no sign of protest on the part of the government. It has been possible, for instance, for Great Britain to seize American citizens, throw them in jail as suspects and hold them there indefinitely without trial. This happened more than once, even during the brief career of brother Blaine as Secretary of State under Garfield. Men claiming to be American citizens were lodged in jail on suspicion of their connection with the Irish troubles, and were held in jail for months and finally released without trial. So far as this government was concerned there was no investigation as to their citizenship and no protest against the unlawful manner in which they had been deprived of their liberty.

The strongest appeals were made to the department of state as well as minister Lowell, but the appeals were unheeded. Minister Lowell was made the subject of severe criticism in the newspapers, though he really had no more to do with the matter than the man in the moon. He had nothing to do but carry out the policy of brother Blaine, whose patriotism was supposed to be a sort of pent-up Vesuvius, ready to erupt at a moment's notice, and deluge the world with genuine American lava.

The democratic policy is very simple. A man who declares his intention to become an American citizen is an American citizen to all intents and purposes, and, as such, is entitled to all the protection that the government can give him. Such a policy does not, in any sense, involve the protection of criminals, but it does secure for the American citizen abroad, whether he be a criminal or an innocent man, the rights that properly belong to him. He will not be permitted to languish in jail without being permitted to meet the charges against, and, he will be accorded the right of a prompt trial, which is all that an innocent man asks for.

This is better than brother Blaine's fire and tow policy, and will be recognized as the proper one by all who have an interest in the dignity of the American name.

THE IRONWORKERS' STRIKE.

The old scale of wages at Pittsburg and other northern iron towns expired on Monday, and there is now a very positive disagreement over a new scale. The manufacturers contend that in the present depression of the trade, they cannot afford to renew the old scale, and the workmen say they cannot afford to accept the wages tendered them.

Mills are therefore shutting down from Pittsburg to Milwaukee, wherever in fact the amalgamated association has a voice. If the strike becomes general and stubborn, fully 100,000 men will be idle during the present summer. A few mills have signed the new scale of the amalgamated association, but most of them have not, and declare they will not.

The prospect, therefore, is that there will be a long and formidable strike.

The manufacturers say they can better afford to let their machinery rust, and their capital lie idle than to make iron at a loss.

The scale of the workmen is not, however, exorbitant, and if Pittsburg has natural gas stored beneath the city to make iron with, it is difficult to see why she cannot afford to a scale. Either her friends for making iron are not altogether what she claims they are, or else her manufacturers are not willing to accept a reasonable profit; for a city that can get an exhaustless supply of fuel by boring a hole in the ground, should be willing to give the workmen a slice of such natural advantages.

But the chances are that the natural gas business has been overdone. If Pittsburg and the Ohio iron towns could make iron with profit, they would not shut down; they could not be induced to shut down; for when they are not making iron, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and the two Virginias are making it, and a suspension in the Pittsburg and Youngstown districts would simply result in the development of the southern districts. If the lock out lasts long it will conclusively show that the ironmakers of Pennsylvania and Ohio have been making iron at a loss, when southern furnaces have profitably made iron for shipment to northern and eastern markets. Unless the millowners sign the new scale, it will seem that they are trying to combine starvation wages and natural gas in order to handicap southern furnaces.

But the iron business is extremely dull. Scarcely any railroads are in process of construction; very few are planned to be built in the near future; all other construction is almost at a standstill; the erection of buildings alone excepted, and stocks of iron are large. With stocks accumulating and prices low, it is no wonder that the mills which have a great future before them. Walkers admits that this is the case, and that the mills at present, and claim that such will have been at the close of two years ago, if the proper sanitary precautions had been taken. In a note to us written since the publication of his interview he explains his figures from his point of view, and claims that the recent thorough sanitary policy adopted in Memphis vindicates his position. Mr. Wallace is among the most enthusiastic of those who predict the future greatness and prosperity of Memphis, and it is his belief that the mills will be in a position to make iron at a loss.

The interview with ex-Attorney General Wallace, concerning Memphis, recently published in the columns of the Graphic, may be relied upon as being true. The mills have not yet begun to turn out again, and the census figures of 1870 represent the normal population. At the period referred to property values were subject to unhealthy conditions, the value of money being unstable and uncertain. Now, things are different. Values are fixed to property and rents bear generally just proportion to the trade or growth of the city. Building is very active. For years the city has been free from epidemics, confidence has been restored, and the trade reports and board of health report show that the city is in a grand position with a great future before her.

Walkers admits that this is the case, and that the mills will be in a position to make iron at a loss.

The late Mr. Fergus, or "Hugh Conway," as he was known to his readers, would doubtless have remained from his illness at Maracaibo, if it had not been for his physician's consent to his taking a ride in the country. During the ride the horses became unmanageable, so that the occupants of the carriage had to leave it. Mr. Fergus was very weak and nervous, and in addition to the shock he had to remain several hours exposed to the atmosphere until another vehicle could be procured. This occasioned a relapse and a few days he died from sheer exhaustion. Until about a year ago Mr. Fergus was a partner in a large auction house in Bristol. He was a good man of business and did not give himself up to literature until he was well assured that it would pay him better than anything else. His success cannot be called accidental or a lucky hit. He seems to have had the happy faculty of seizing everything he sees. He was a close student and a great reader in his room, and applied himself industriously to literary work. His first efforts he did not publish until recently when they were issued in a volume under the title "Round Table." Years ago he attracted favorable recognition by his clever poems and sketches in the magazines. He published a volume of poems dedicated to his wife. He has been known to write a couple of songs in a day for each of which he would receive twenty-five dollars. Everybody is familiar with the phenomenal success of "Called Back" and "Dark Days."

The story "A Family Affair" now running in serial form was completed before the author's death. Another story was also published for the summer number of the London Graphic. The Bristol Mercury speaks of the death of Mr. Fergus as "nothing short of a calamity that he should have been called away so early from a city to which he was helping to bring renown."

It is now understood that Louis Reamey, who has been possible, for instance, for Great Britain to seize American citizens, threw them in jail as suspects and hold them there indefinitely without trial.

The electricians are now using a square wire. This is a very hopeful sign. When will the gas men use a perfectly square meter?

COMMON SENSE is no longer common sense when carried to extremes. Undoubtedly a common sense way of regarding things has greatly enlarged and improved our life. Why should we eat frogs, was the question asked by many civilized people. They say that frogs are good and so they ate them. Now Professor Riley and other eminent scientists claim that there is no reason in the world why we should not eat insects. It may be that they are right, and civilized people may come to it, but it is time to come to a halt. The late Dr. Beard propounded the question, "Why is not man good food for man, and why should not cannibals be healthy and strong?" He answers it by saying that man is good food and that cannibals are the strongest and healthiest of savages. Clearly the scientists won't do to trust. They must be kept within bounds. If let alone they run to the wildest excesses.

IN SLOVAK OVER Brother Blaine, George Alfred Gath should follow the example of the red-eyed locust. They are said to molt their sad horns once every seventeen years.

A FINE looking drummer for a wholesale liquor house recently had a colorful adventure while passing through Baltimore. One night after supper he struck down the street when he came to a stop, whereupon a crowd were ascending.

A grave-looking gentleman seized the drummer by the hand, saying, "Come along, colonel; I am glad to see you." Flattered by the title, and thinking it unnecessary to make any explanations to the man who had carried the drummer in remarked that Colonel Blank was with them, and that although obliged to catch a train he would address them briefly. The drummer finished with an inquiry as to his place to the drum, and then went on his way.

IT IS funny to see the entire editorial staff of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette jump up and shiver every time Jefferson Davis makes a casual remark.

THE Birmingham Chronicle urges the people of Montgomery to erect a Yancey monument on the capitol grounds. Says the Chronicle: "If Alabama was right in 1860, Yancey was her oracle. If the happiest, strongest, most virtuous civilization the world ever saw was worthy of the heroic struggle in which it was extinguished in the annihilation of the physical resources of the country, Yancey above all other men, and the equal of ten thousand other men, was its author."

THE Temperate Zone.

Reader, Chestnut Gap, Ga.: Do the seasons in the temperate zone in South America correspond with the seasons of the temperate zone in North America? Is the name of the month correct?

It simply signifies a sleep-walker. One who frequently or occasionally walks in his sleep is a somnambulist. Such a person may be of sound mind.

MR. BEECHER ON EVOLUTION.

The Record of the Rocks and Book of Scientific Religious Infidelity.

The second of Mr. Beecher's projected ten sermons upon "Evolution and Religion," was delivered to a large audience in Plymouth church Sunday morning. The sermon was read from manuscript. He said in part:

"That the whole world and the entire universe are the creation of God is the testimony of the Bible, with both Jewish and Christian.

He made them, whether by the direct force of the creative will or by gradual creation, is by no means agreed upon. But the world is not a chaos, nor a state of fermentation, but a self-development.

It is the product of an intelligent being and of a divine will. We have two records of creative energy. One shows how man was unfolded by the inspiration of God all over the earth. The other record is the book of nature, and there is a transcription of the divine thought in the unfolding of the globe.

THROUGH THE CITY.

ITEMS OF INTEREST GATHERED ON THE STREETS.

What the Scribe Found to Write About Yesterday—The Courts—The Police Department—What the Real Estate Agents and Builders are Doing—Accidents of the Day.

A car vegetables cheap at Clark & Webster's. The lamp-lighters retire about 2 o'clock just now.

A delightful programme has been arranged. They are anxious to secure a full attendance. Officer West, who has been out of the city several days, returned yesterday and will remain here.

A fine mule belonging to E. C. Ward, on Washington street, died yesterday morning. The animal was valued at $350.

The remains of A. J. Moore, the suicide, were laid to rest yesterday in Westview cemetery. The funeral procession was a small one.

Elmira Jarvis, a young colored woman, dropped dead late yesterday afternoon at her home on West street. Her death was due to heart disease.

Yesterday afternoon George Miller, an employee at the Atlanta brewery, fractured his right leg by a fall while wrestling with a friend. Dr. Borchem reduced the fracture.

Frank Morgan, a ten-year-old white girl whose parents reside on Jenkins street, was severely bitten about the neck and shoulders yesterday afternoon by a dog she encountered on Collins street.

The Young Ladies' home mission society, of the First Baptist church, will give an entertainment at the residence of Colonel W. B. Seals, No. 39 Church street, Friday evening, June 4th, at 7:30 o'clock.

A sea fishing party from Marietta, up the McDonald River, yesterday, with Mr. Cliff Mansfield as chief fisherman. They having much success, judging from the well-filled basket of the finny tribe sent home yesterday.

Leak & Lyle's sale yesterday at West End was quite a success. A large crowd went out to the sale and fifteen lots were sold. The lots were located on Lee and Gordon streets, and the prices obtained averaged $2,200 per acre.

The superior court has been engaged for the past two days on the case of H. vs. Marion, and it is not yet concluded. It is a suit for the possession of a piece of land on Marietta street. King & King, Shumate & Conley and Hiller & Bro represent the plaintiff. Spears & Samuels are counsel for the defendant.

Mrs. W. H. D. McDonald, of Bartow county, met with a serious and almost fatal accident yesterday, at Cartersville. Mrs. McDonald and a son were across the railroad track in front of the down passenger train. She was not quick enough and was struck by the engine and knocked several feet. Her face and body were badly scratched and bruised.

The skating contest at the strawberry festival now being held at No. 10 N. Pryor st., will take place to-night, and the contest for the second place across the railroad track in front of the down passenger train. She was not quick enough and was struck by the engine and knocked several feet. Her face and body were badly scratched and bruised.

Captured After a Hot Race From His Elated Distillery—His Statement.

For some time past the revenue officials have been watching a suspected locality near Fort Mountain, in Cherokee county, and Tuesday night James O. Farrell, federal deputy collector, accompanied by Deputies L. C. Campbell and J. A. Bledsoe, having ascertained pretty clearly that there was an illicit distillery in the vicinity determined to find it and to capture the stills. They waited until the night before last, and he could not disregard it. Yesterday morning he telephoned to Sheriff Connolly, asking for a confirmation or a refutation of Willis's statement.

Sheriff Connolly instantly wired:

"The brother is upon us all armed with a rifle and was about to use it when Pannell asserted that he would prove the statement true in a half hour if given that time, or he would take the coahiding. This proposition appeared fair and the brother consented to suspend operations for thirty minutes. To gather up two men prepared to telegraph and here Pannell's check played him well. He wrote a telegram to an Atlantan, and after paying for it, walked out of the office to return no more. He didn't care to see the answer and, watching his opportunity, he began to hit the grit at a run. The development of the story, and last night nothing was discussed in Selma but the sensational story of an absent groon.

Pannell's home is in Carroll county. He has a wife and several children near Carrollton. About two years ago he came to Atlanta, and a short time later he married a daughter of about six years. He made his home with a woman on Thompson street, and introduced her as his wife. The police records show that he was frequently fined for whipping his wife. In February Sheriff Hewett came to Atlanta and arrested Pannell on a warrant for his wife's desertion and abandoned his wife and children. He was taken back to Carrollton and was released upon his solemn promise to provide for his family. His daughter, who had been living with him, was taken back. In a few days, however, Pannell disappeared from Carrollton and was last seen with him within a month past. Then the western papers told a sensational story about his arrest in Palestine, Texas, where he married or attempted to marry a young lady. For a time Pannell again disappeared, but his disappearance is now understood.

A BLACK MOONSHINER.

Captured After a Hot Race From His Elated Distillery—His Statement.

For some time past the revenue officials have been watching a suspected locality near Fort Mountain, in Cherokee county, and Tuesday night James O. Farrell, federal deputy collector, accompanied by Deputies L. C. Campbell and J. A. Bledsoe, having ascertained pretty clearly that there was an illicit distillery in the vicinity determined to find it and to capture the stills. They waited until the night before last, and he could not disregard it. Yesterday morning he telephoned to Sheriff Connolly, asking for a confirmation or a refutation of Willis's statement.

Sheriff Connolly instantly wired:

"The brother is upon us all armed with a rifle and was about to use it when Pannell asserted that he would prove the statement true in a half hour if given that time, or he would take the coahiding. This proposition appeared fair and the brother consented to suspend operations for thirty minutes. To gather up two men prepared to telegraph and here Pannell's check played him well. He wrote a telegram to an Atlantan, and after paying for it, walked out of the office to return no more. He didn't care to see the answer and, watching his opportunity, he began to hit the grit at a run. The development of the story, and last night nothing was discussed in Selma but the sensational story of an absent groon.

Pannell's home is in Carroll county. He has a wife and several children near Carrollton. About two years ago he came to Atlanta, and a short time later he married a daughter of about six years. He made his home with a woman on Thompson street, and introduced her as his wife. The police records show that he was frequently fined for whipping his wife. In February Sheriff Hewett came to Atlanta and arrested Pannell on a warrant for his wife's desertion and abandoned his wife and children. He was taken back to Carrollton and was released upon his solemn promise to provide for his family. His daughter, who had been living with him, was taken back. In a few days, however, Pannell disappeared from Carrollton and was last seen with him within a month past. Then the western papers told a sensational story about his arrest in Palestine, Texas, where he married or attempted to marry a young lady. For a time Pannell again disappeared, but his disappearance is now understood.

THE CROWDED ASYLUM.

Nearly One Dozen Lunatics in Fulton County Who Cannot Get In.

The deficient accommodations for the insane in this state are often discussed, and at every session of the legislature a bill is proposed. In Fulton county there is at present a strong illustration of this unfortunate condition of the asylum.

At the captured still there were found and destroyed 1,200 gallons of beer and about 40 gallons of low wines. The moonshiner was just ready to make a "doubling" when he was surprised. He gave his name as Richard Babby. He is about forty years old and is six feet tall. He was born in New Haven, Connecticut, and came to Atlanta yesterday and is now in jail. This morning he will be carried before the United States district court. He says he means not only to plead guilty, but will tell the judge who hired him to work in the still and who owned the concern.

THE COUNTY GUARDIAN.

Various Orders Relative to the Care and Disposition of Property.

Ordinary Calhoun yesterday issued an order to John Stephens, administrator of the estate of the late Edward Mercer, granting him permission to sell the perishable property of the estate.

Leave to expend "part of corpus" was granted to Amanda S. Clarke, guardian of Sam Clarke and other minor children.

The will of Temperance Shepard was proven in common form and admitted to record. Clara E. and F. S. Shepard are the executors.

Arthur E. Connally has been appointed guardian of Charles Lynch, a minor.
